

Free Mail
Delivery July 1st

NARBERTH GOES "OVER THE TOP" IN PROVIDING THE REQUIRED NUMBER OF PRIVATE MAIL RECEPTACLES ON JUNE 15.

The people of Narberth responded splendidly to a somewhat strenuous campaign waged by Postmaster Haws, his assistants and some of our good citizens in providing the required number of private mail receptacles which were to be in evidence on the date set by the authorities at Washington, namely, June 15.

Two days before the required date, Postmaster Haws was quite discouraged, as the outlook was plainly evident that unless some strenuous activity was manifested that the 85% of the houses would not have responded. By splendid co-operation during the past few days, sufficient boxes were installed at sufficient homes to enable Postmaster Haws to report favorably to the authorities at Washington. Consequently, the free mail delivery service for Narberth will be in operation on July 1st.

Narberth, no doubt, is proud of this progressive step, and Postmaster Haws should be commended upon his untiring efforts in the work which he has done for our borough, as, during his time we have witnessed the moving of the post office to larger quarters with entirely new equipment in every particular, practically a doubling of the help in the office as well as the free mail delivery service.

Of course, these things could not have been done had not our postmaster received the hearty co-operation of the citizens of our borough, which only goes to show that very little can be accomplished in any community unless there is absolute co-operation on the part of the citizens.

Narberth Woman
Safe in Armenia

MISS MARY SUPER AND OTHER WORKERS ARE REPORTED LIVING IN HADJIN.

The following article appeared in the Evening Ledger Tuesday, and is, no doubt, of interest to Miss Super's friends:

Miss Mary Super, of Narberth, Pa., American worker in Armenia, is safe at Hadjin, though living under Turkish nationalist rule and unable to communicate with her friends and relatives in the United States.

The safety of Miss Super, Miss Edith Cold, of Cleveland, and Miss Alice Clark, of Evanston, Ill., the three American workers in Hadjin, is indicated by an Associated Press dispatch received today from Adana, to which place advices had come through from Hadjin under date of May 28.

Miss Super's family in Narberth had not heard from her previously since February, when she wrote that there had been heavy snowfalls which cut wire communication. Since then, though they have made every effort to learn something about her, even indirectly, the best information they could get from the New York headquarters was that they "hoped" the American workers were alive and well.

The message from Adana says that there is much consternation in Asia Minor because the twenty-day armistice concluded between the French and the Turkish nationalists make no provisions for the Armenians, and it is feared that Armenians may be murdered by the Turks during the interval.

The message received from Hadjin does not disclose the fate of the Armenian orphans there, who were under the care of the American workers. It has been reported, however, that the Turks killed the boys and carried off the girls.

Word was received at Adana May 6 from Constantinople saying that the American workers had vainly tried to effect a compromise between the armed forces of the Armenians and the Nationalists.

It is said that the Americans surrendered their compound several months ago.

The Women's Community Club holds its Lawn Fete today.

Have you strolled on the new boardwalk? No, not at Atlantic City, but at Narberth station, north side.

The Main Line Community Kitchens, Inc., have opened a tea room at Haverford, Pa.

Captain and Mrs. Forrest Willford, of Washington, D. C., have returned to their home after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh B. Speed, of Chestnut avenue.

Mr. Hugh B. Speed, of Chestnut avenue, is recovering rapidly from an operation and expects to return home within a few days.

Don't forget the straw ride starting at 7.15 from the Fete grounds tonight. It will be piles of fun and costs only a few cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood Weiner and son, Billy, have returned after a very pleasant three week, spent at Ocean City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Scott, of Woodside avenue, left for Ocean City, N. J., on Tuesday. They will spend the summer in their cottage at that popular seashore resort, returning to Narberth about the middle of September.

Borough Council has taken up the matter of correcting the street numbering where the houses have had wrong numbers. Price and Woodbine seem to be the principal streets effected. This is necessary on account of free mail delivery service.

Carroll Downes, head of the commercial service department of the Philadelphia National Bank, has just returned from Chicago and other Western points, where he accompanied the Philadelphia delegation from the Poor Richard Club, which left a week ago Saturday for Indianapolis to attend the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Mr. Downes also attended the sessions of the Financial Advertisers' Association at the time the Associated Advertising Clubs were in session. Mr. Downes visited Chicago at the time of the Republican Convention and then Minneapolis and Milwaukee, in which cities he consulted with exporters and importers with a view of making known the advantages of the port of Philadelphia.

SCHOOL NOTES

"Without halting, without rest,
Lifting better up to best."

Commencement exercises were held last Friday night at the Lower Merion High School, at Ardmore, at which 56 members of the graduating class received their diplomas, 22 in the college preparatory course, 21 in the general course, and 13 in the commercial course. The exercises were attended by a large gathering of friends of the students.

Children's Day

(By One Present)

God loves children, and they were favored greatly by Him last Sunday morning at the Children's Day exercises of the Narberth Presbyterian Sunday School. It was the big day of their Sunday School life, and their interest and zeal in the program made it a happy day for all who attended.

The attendance itself was an event. A new record was created for attendance at our church. 425 were present and it is pleasing to know that the teachers were able to look after the comforts of so great a number.

The floral decorations were so lavished and of such wondrous beauty that it was a joy to look upon, and then to see the pretty children, from little four-year-old tots and up, recite and sing amidst this splendor of nature's beauty was wonderful to look upon.

The flower committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary and their kind friends who so graciously donated flowers for the day deserve many thanks for their splendid work.

The superintendents and assistants of Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primary and Junior Departments arranged a most enjoyable program. The little folks showed they had been well trained and presented the fact that we have plenty willingness to work, too.

Prof. Melehoir, who for many years has put life and pep into our singing, was again at his accustomed place. We were grateful to have such splendid music. Mr. Peter Stam, Jr., organist; Miss Agnes Rose, pianist, and Mr. A. J. Loos, violinist. The organist and pianist were situated so that they could not see one another, but played in perfect time even under such conditions. This exhibition was a rare treat.

Our Sunday School invites all those who are not members of any other church or Sunday School to visit our school. We have departments for all ages, and you will receive a hearty welcome.

"Over the top" is the final result of the free mail delivery campaign for Narberth. Congratulations everybody!

Burgess Downes is assisting in a wonderful work for the city of Philadelphia at this time, and has just returned from several Western cities, in which he has been in consultation with exporters and importers with a view of making known the advantages of the port of Philadelphia. He has been very successful in this work, which is in the interest of the Philadelphia National Bank, which is one more instance in which Narberth's men are brought forth for "big things."

BACK TO BRYN MAWR.

Main Line Branch of Red Cross Will Move Again.

The headquarters of the Main Line Branch of the American Red Cross will return to Bryn Mawr, it was decided at a meeting of the Board of Directors at Ardmore last week.

At this meeting the decision was made to ask the Bryn Mawr Memorial Committee if the branch could transfer its headquarters from Ardmore to the projected Memorial Building on the Black property, Lancaster and Bryn Mawr avenues. This committee is planning a fund-raising campaign to open on June 21, for the purchase of the Black property and its transformation into a memorial which shall be the headquarters for the civic organizations of the locality. It seemed, to the board, that a memorial to the men in the service was the most fitting centre for Red Cross activities and the Bryn Mawr Memorial Committee welcomes the opportunity of including the Main Line Branch in the organization which will use the building.

The Well Baby Clinic, which has been doing such splendid work for the children of Ardmore and the vicinity, will continue at the offices in the Ardmore House on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 2 until 4.

Fraternity—

An Americanism

By S. ROBERT ROSS.

Copy of paper read before meeting of Narberth Post, American Legion, June 11, 1920, by S. Robert Ross, Americanism Officer.

Americanism Committee: S. Robert Ross, Chairman; A. L. Cutts, W. J. Burns.

PREFACE.

During the last year we have all heard much of the word "Americanism." Just what does this word mean to us? Can any of us give a concise, comprehensive definition of the word. Frankly, for myself, I confess that what this word means has a range so far reaching, a scope so magnificent, a magnitude so wonderful, that I cannot bring all of the rays of its radiating interest to a descriptive focus and say, "This is Americanism."

I think that, most likely, all of us feel about the same regarding it.

At all events, Americanism is a word that suggests to our minds certain characteristics which we immediately visualize, and though we see their import through a hazy vagueness, we classify them as Americanisms. These characteristics may be certain traits in an individual, the peculiar common customs of different sections of our country, or the complications of some of our antiquated business methods, which we do not understand. Or they may be the attitudes toward certain social customs and conventions, toward certain styles in dressing, and toward certain imposition of rules and regulations regarding what we shall drink—rather, what we shall not drink. They may be the passive recognition of a national fault, about which we do nothing; yes, even this too common tendency to do nothing about those affairs which do not touch the individual, but which are of vast importance to each individual as one of the whole of the Nation's personnel.

We will readily classify as an Americanism the enthusiasm of adherence to a great national principle, or the great waves of patriotism which sweep our country in times of stress. Also under this same classification we will place our laxity and indifference toward the exercise of the franchise, along with our present headlong tendencies toward extravagance, and also our slang and our "cuss" words. All these things we recognize and we satisfy ourselves that we know them; that they are Americanisms.

I have never read nor have I ever heard a comprehensively satisfying definition of this great national individualism, nor do I think that its bigness can be concentrated into four or five words which will comprehend it. There is no other word in our language which can equal it.

Perhaps, however, you will agree with me in this; that we can take this gem of words, look at it, study it, discuss its beauty, touch it with our soul's finger, and from merely being in its atmosphere, that we can breathe into our beings and into our national existence a deep, healthful inhalation of vigor and "pep" toward nationalizing more thoroughly some of the component parts of Americanism.

Let us, then, take one thing at a time—one subject at a time—and I assure you that we can keep on taking one thing at a time from now until doom's day and the wonderful source of supply will not then be depleted, and with each, let us build a foundation on which to erect a structure which will finally pyramid itself to an apex. Then let us take the composite of our thoughts and efforts and set it there.

In the future, some kindly friend, passing by and seeing this monument, may marvel at its wonderful construction and may stop to examine the blocks with which it is built and so recognize and understand the glorious beauty of it. He will then cause to be placed on each side of the foundation this inscription,

"Here is Americanism."

It is the function of your Americanism Officer to foster patriotic principles in the Post and in the community. The beginning of this effort is the presentation of a paper containing a few thoughts, common enough with us all, perhaps—but they need stirring up—on a subject which is, by its innate characteristics, an Americanism of the highest order.

We can all put into quite definite language just what the word "fraternity" means. There is something of comforting euphony in the phonography of the word which we all understand—and we don't need to look it up in the dictionary.

As a Nation we have a predominant characteristic which is not fraternal—which is un-American! I mean the characteristic of our individual and our clique or group selfishness.

This selfishness, though at all times and in all ways unintentional and unstudied, is so evident in the dispositions of most of us that it is one of the things which is not dimmed in the hazy vagueness of our view of the wonder-word, Americanism, it is so perhaps because this trait is so thoroughly unnatural to us.

But, beneath this selfishness there still beats the American heart and "after the ice is broken," as the common saying is, one begins to see the big generosity of the real American character under it. But why must we enslave our hearts in a crust of ice? Why must we assume this attitude which is not fraternal and which does not lend itself in any way to the easy fostering of Americanism?

Enthusiastically, each one of us is willing—yes, anxious to enter wholeheartedly into any movement to advance Americanism. Is it not so?

Is that because of the mere lofty sound of the word, the meaning of which we do not quite understand, but which has an alluring effect upon our emotions?

Are we just as enthusiastic about entering upon some of the humbler projects and are we just as willing to help advance each of the smaller meanings of this great word? Just so soon as we are willing to put ourselves out in some small way to help a good cause, just so soon do we begin to loose our individual and our clique selfishness—and fraternity is the better for our effort.

If Americanism means fraternity, and it surely does, as I see one of its many brilliant sides, we must get out of ourselves, open up our interests toward other channels than the ruts which we have worn in the pathways of our own individual lives. We must rejuvenate in ourselves the natural American born tendencies to which American birth has made us heirs.

I can't help thinking that, in the days when democracy, such as we know it, was little more than a mythical idea; the men who laid the foundations for the future of this great Republic surely must have been big, kind-hearted, noble fellows, who put their shoulders under every one's cares and made them their own. And that is the thing to which we are heirs. But our present day mode of living, our present day business life, our hustle, our haste, all tend to depress and retard the growth of the kind of fraternity which our forefathers left us as our birthright. It is our duty, then, as Americans, to overcome these present day difficulties and not to let this gift lie unused and to become a forgotten treasure hidden under the cover of our individual interests, but to bring it out and to put it forward and to make every effort to show it, that all the people of the world may know that we possess a treasure of incomparable value—and that we are willing to share it with them.

Let us go around the corner now and then, out of the habitually worn path, to get into closer and more friendly touch with our neighbors and fellow townsmen. Let us thaw out the taciturn easing of frigidity around our dispositions and let us warm up the atmosphere surrounding us that the innate friendly warmth of our natures may be felt, and the spirit of neighborly fraternity will warm us in return.

Civic pride is one of the highest ideals—Americanism—to which one may cling, and this pride is nurtured to a healthy growth only by doing things civic. Perhaps more of us would do or help to do these things were it not for what we term "cliques." But, on the other hand, these cliques could not exist did we exhibit a more free and earnest willingness to help, or did we make known our willingness to do—rather than to sit back and to make sport of the well-intentioned efforts of others, while the only effort we put forth is to swing the sledge hammer.

Fraternity—An Americanism

It isn't a matter of necessity that one must be a leader. Come, follow on a while and see how things boom and you will be surprised at the new meaning fraternity will have to you and the big things—fraternity—Americanism—will mean to our town. Can't you see that Americanism would get a wonderful boost if every one would whirl in and do something to help our town to become, in its civic affairs, a big fraternal organization?

If what is said at this time is elusive, I would that each grasp this thought and hold it.

The Bolshevik principles are based on the ancient idea of equality of men in the practice of "I am as good as you!" Perhaps, originally, that did express an equality—of a kind.

How often do we hear this statement? Times out of number. Yet, never does it express equality. How often it is the motive force of a retaliating action for some fancied infringement of one's personal rights? How often it is used to express an inward felt contemptuous superiority which has little of the spirit of fraternity urging it.

That sentiment is all wrong. I say, "I am as good as you," but I don't mean that. What I really do mean is, "I am better than you."

Read how this sentiment has worked out in Russia. The Bolshevik says to his dissenting countryman, "I am as good as you—I'll show you that I am!" and forthwith proceeds to murder him and to steal his goods. That is the fraternity of Bolshevism.

As a substitute how is this? "You are as good as I." Doesn't that put another face on the old saying? If I say, "You are as good as I," I can hardly mean that I feel that I am your superior in any sense, and there is no resentment in my attitude because of the fact.

The members of this Post—the members of every Post of the American Legion—must say to every American, "You are as good as I," and forthwith proceed to prove it to him—not with murder, but with the uplift of generous help and kindly criticism—not with robbery, but with the giving of every possible effort to make his neighbor's life bigger and broader. That is the fraternity of Americanism.

There is no better tool for certain purposes than the sledge hammer. But in the use of it a slip can do an awful amount of damage. And this slip can be made by a misdirected swing of a well-intentioned blow. When it lands the damage is done. Our verbal sledge hammers can effect just such damage. There is a vast difference between what the well-directed blow of thoughtful criticism can accomplish and the damage that can be done by thoughtless and ill-considered "knocking." The ironclad can effectively use the sledge hammer to demolish, but he does not understand the use of the tool for reconstruction. So, until we have something definite to reconstruct, let us put the sledge hammer away.

To do constructive things we must first think of them. To think of them, subjects must first be suggested to us. I have tried to present to you one phase of Americanism in such a way that it may suggest to you a few thoughts for constructive work in the Post.

One good thought, on any subject, surely, can be found among any fifty good Americans, or to be more concrete, among the good Americans of our Post. Let us have your thoughts—help us to put them to work and they will go on a journey of constructive uplift, throughout the world, which will keep them so busy that they will never come back to upbraid you.

Long, long ago, two thoughts started out to see the world. They agreed to take separate routes and to return to their starting place as soon as each found that the world had no further use for it. The one arriving first was to await the other, and then, they agreed, they would have a pleasant time exchanging the history of their travels and experiences.

One thought was light, frivolous and jealous, without a care, but for itself, and it had little excuse for existing, except for the fact that it was a thought. It would flutter hither and thither, lighting here and there like a butterfly—taking always something of the sweetness of the flower, but never adding anything to it.

The other thought was calm and serious, yet gay and generous, with a jovial light-heartedness—and, like the first, fluttered here and there, but, like a Santa Claus, always leaving something where it lit, but never taking anything away.

The above department should be of the greatest use to the community, the list contains the name of every professional man, tradesman, mechanic, shopkeeper, etc., who does or can in any way serve his fellow-townsmen, and who is progressive enough to add name to list of Registrar.

As it is difficult for those contributing their time and efforts to the production of "Our Town" to personally either know or interview all such, it would be most helpful if those not now found in the printed list would send in a memo of their names, address, phone numbers and businesses or professions for listing. This will cost as follows: 10 cents each issue for 2 lines; 5 cents for each additional line.

What's become of the prejudice against automobiles because they frightened the horses

© 1920

NOW cars are everywhere. The horses have gotten used to them—and so has everybody else. Think of it! This year the American people will spend nearly a billion dollars on tires alone.

Tires are one of the biggest items on the car owner's bills.

II

Hardly a Saturday, when you motorists drop in to "tune up" for a Sunday trip, that one or more of you doesn't tell us something of value to our business. Sooner or later it comes back to you in Service.

Service is what the car owners of this community are looking for nowadays.

And especially the small car owners, who put service

first in figuring their motor-ing expenditures.

III

Just because a man has a moderate - price car is no reason why he should get any less service out of his tires.

We believe that the man with the small car is entitled to just as good tire service as the man with the big car—and both are entitled to the best tire service they can get.

That's why we represent U. S. Tires in this community.

And why more car owner—large and small—are coming to us every day for U. S. Tires.

IV

Come in and talk to us about tires. We're here to help you get the kind of tires you want.

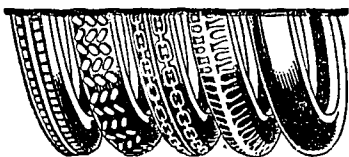

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.
